1909, F. T. Marinetti, "The Futurist Manifesto"

4. We affirm that the world's magnificence has been enriched by a new beauty: the beauty of speed. A racing car whose hood is adorned with great pipes, like serpents of explosive breath - a roaring car that seems to ride on grapeshot is more beautiful than the Victory of Samothrace.

2009, Franco Berardi, "The Post-Futurist Manifesto"

4. We declare that the splendor of the world has been enriched by a new beauty: the beauty of autonomy. Each to her own rhythm; nobody must be constrained to march on a uniform pace. Cars have lost their allure of rarity and above all they can no longer perform the task they were conceived for: speed has slowed down. Cars are immobile like stupid slumbering tortoises in the city traffic. Only slowness is fast.

2109, Jakub Hanna, "Too Fast To Last"

We believe that the glory of the world has been enriched by a new beauty: the beauty of decay. Multiple attempts to rescue car ideas were unsuccessful. The item is not a determinant of desire anymore. Building an idealized, in theory, world highway, could not take place. Along with the machines, we are fed up with the capitalistic race. There is nothing faster than a free thought.
